Description

Victorian style silver plated claret jug in the form of a standing parrot / cockatoo with beautifully detailed cast hinged head and has a hallmark on the neck with a white glass body and a clear glass handle standing on two cast claw legs and the purple eyes are glass.

This charming Victorian-style silver-plated claret jug is crafted in the form of a standing parrot or cockatoo, combining whimsical animal motif with classic tableware design. The beautifully modelled bird stands proudly on cast claw feet, its elegantly curved form supporting a lustrous white glass body that holds claret or wine with style. Intricate detailing on the avian head, beak and feet adds character, making this jug both a functional drinks accessory and a captivating decorative piece.

Perfect for collectors of novelty barware or those seeking distinctive conversation pieces, this Victorian-inspired jug blends late-19th-century aesthetic with decorative appeal. Whether displayed as part of a silver collection or used to serve at special occasions, it brings historic charm and eye-catching design to any setting.
