Description

This butterfly brooch features a graceful winged form decorated with amethyst, enamel and marcasite. The central body is set with amethyst and marcasite stones, while the delicately shaped wings are finished with coloured enamel, creating a harmonious contrast of texture and colour.

Inspired by the Art Nouveau period, the design captures the elegance and movement of a butterfly in flight. The combination of stones and enamel gives the brooch a decorative presence that reflects traditional jewellery craftsmanship.

This brooch has been handcrafted in sterling silver using traditional jewellery-making techniques. The enamel detailing, gemstone settings and marquissette work are carefully applied, and the piece is hand finished and polished.
